Our Mission

The Technical Services Training and Simulation Group has instructed thousands of warfighters and commanders over the span of several decades. Its training programs are based on up-to-date scenarios and provide realistic battlefield conditions, so that by the time our troops see action, they have, in a sense, already been there.

The Training and Simulation Group provides training applications in live, virtual, and constructive training environments. It offers a full range of training services, from individual training products and courseware to full life-cycle training programs. The group takes pride in the diversity of its training applications and works daily to make them more valuable to our customers.
